A glycerine plant which had been turning out the fluid for German explosives is shattered by the blast as the British blow up the factory during their raid on the Lofoten Islands, off Norway. The raiders made a clean sweep of all war material plants, seized 225 prisoners and rescued more than 300 Norwegian patriots from the Nazi yoke.

HIGHWAY PROJECT
WILL PARE CURVES
SOUTH OF LISBON

Re-located Road Will Have Only Four: Grade Is Cut to 6 Per Cent

Improvement of 3.529 miles of U. S. 30, the Cleveland-East Liverpool road, starting at the Lisbon corporation line and extending toward East Liverpool, will be carried out this year at a cost of $368,196.

Contract for the project has been awarded by the department of highways to Carl Myers, Campbellsburg, Ind., it was announced by Hal G. Sours, director. Completion date for the work is Nov. 30, 1941. The estimated cost of the work was $425,450.

This project is on a priority military highway and the improvement will replace old 14 and 18-foot brick pavement. The present road has 13 curves in it in the area covered by the contract for betterment. The relocated right-of-way will have but four curves in it, eliminating nine.

Maximum grade on the present highway is nine per cent, and the maximum grade on the new road will be only six per cent, Director Sours pointed out. Lowering of the grade percentage will make it possible for heavy truck traffic to move more freely, Mr. Sours added.

It will be necessary to move a frame garage 32 by 60 feet. It will be moved 10 feet and raised three feet. Near the Lisbon corporation line the Mrs. Harry Moore (nee Burnette) house will be squared to face the new roadway, and will be lowered three feet. On the W. H. Stokesberry property the barn will be moved to the top of a hill 300 feet west of its present site.

This project calls for grading, construction of drainage structures, and paving with reinforced concrete. The pavement will be 24 and 40 feet in width, and the roadway will be 40 and 44 feet wide. The project is located in Elk Run and Center townships, Columbiana county.

Ten Take Degrees
At Grange Meeting

A class of 10 candidates was given the third and fourth degrees Friday evening at Goshen grange by a young people's team from Greenford grange.

The work was put on in full form, under the direction of Captain Florence McFall. Mrs. Donald Beardsley was pianist and a trio composed of Miss Evelyn Corli, Miss Alberta Kenneigh and Mrs. Wayne Johnson gave vocal numbers. Several tableaux were used. Two former members were reinstated.

The new members included Mrs. Carrie Beeler, Mrs. Lucy Berk, Misses Lucia Himmelpach, Eileen Minner, Lois Beck, Vonetta Stanley, Helen Starbuck, Fred Himmelpach, Walter Greenstein and Donald Beeler.

The Goshen grange first and second degree team conferred those degrees on a class of 10 candidates at Dublin grange Tuesday evening.

During the business session the grange voted unanimously against the legislative bill to have an open season on quail.

Following the meeting a birthday party was held, honoring 31 persons, members of the subordinate and juvenile wanges. Mrs. C. D. Carr was the oldest member honored and Bettie Louise Martig, the youngest.

The first project meeting of 1941 will be held at Greenford grange on April 1, with Ellsworth grange giving the program.

Three new members were received by the juvenile grange, and a social committee was named. A program included songs by the members, a duet by June and Mildred McCluggage, recitations by Janet Capel, Wanda Minner and Lee McCluggage, folk dances by Albert and Janet Capel, riddles and games.

SAFER AIR ROUTE

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, March 22.—A production schedule to supply Great Britain with some 20,000 American-made fighting planes in the next 18 months—10,700 of these under terms of the $7,000,000,000 British aid bill—was reported today to have been worked out by high administration officials.

Supplementing this tremendous program, there were authoritative reports that surveys now are under way looking toward establishment of an aerial route to England over which pursuit ships, as well as bombers could be flown by easy stages.

Difficulties Seen

A course beginning at Newfoundland and touching Greenland, Iceland and possibly Ireland was described as under contemplation. This was said, however, to entail numerous difficulties, such as the lack of facilities and possible Danish objections in Greenland as well as Ireland's refusal thus far to grant Britain bases on her territory.

"Scouting" work was reported to be under way on this projected route, with the thought that if it could be established pursuit ships of relatively short-range might be ferried under their own power across the Atlantic in "stepping-stone" hops. Such a system would widestep the dangers of submarine and raider threats to which surface shipping is subject.

Flown Non-Stop

Most of the bombers thus far delivered to England were said to have been flown across non-stop under British supervision without a single casualty. The reported citation of this record in closed congressional hearings led some observers to believe that if a three or four-stop route were laid out, American fliers might take the planes part of the way across the Atlantic.

In addition, the British were reported to have contracted privately, before passage of the lease-lend law, for the construction of approximately 9,000 fighting planes which are yet to come off the assembly lines. This cash deal was said to have accounted for a major share of more than 12,000 planes the British were credited with ordering in this country since the war began.

All Courthouse Toll Calls,
Without O.K., Are Banned

LISBON, March 22.—Columbiana county's straightened financial circumstances led to the banning by the commissioners Friday afternoon of all long distance telephone calls with $1.000 earmarked for this purpose in January having dwindled to approximately $200 for the remainder of the fiscal year.

Commissioners at first contemplated banning calls by everyone but the sheriff's department and the common pleas court, but after discussing the matter with each county official, even those exemptions were removed. Henceforth, calls may be made only after permission has been secured from the commissioners.

In addition to the service of the offices having been somewhat impaired by this order, the county building itself has felt the economy measure in the way of an undermanned janitor force. As a result, several county officials have been welding mops, brooms and dusting, and even washing windows.

GERMANY CLAIMS

Total of 224,000 Tons Is Destroyed; Raid In N.
Atlantic Zone

(By Associated Press)

BERLIN, March 22.—Adolf Hitler's battleships have made an extensive raid in the north Atlantic and these, with U-boats and the Luftwaffe, have destroyed the total of 224,000 tons of "enemy" shipping, it was announced today.

(Announcement by the Germans that German battleships were operating in the north Atlantic followed by five days the statement of British Prime Minister Winston Churchill that Nazi "battle cruisers" and submarines were operating on the "American side of the Atlantic" and had sunk shipping as far west as the 42nd Meridian—a line which runs through Greenland, 450 miles east of Cape Rice, Newfoundland, and 1,500 miles east of New York. The British Press association yesterday said Churchill referred to the two 26,000-ton German battleships Scharnhorst and Gneisenau.)

In addition, the high command said, a destroyer was hit on the bow by a bomb at Malta, and another vessel of 6,000 tons was set afire in the attack near Crete.

In the attacks on convoys between Africa and Greece near Crete the Germans said fighting planes made two direct hits on a 12,000-ton tanker which burst into flames and was considered lost, broke into two parts a second ship of 8,000 tons, and fired a third vessel of 6,000 tons.

SENATORS SUPPORT

Farm Amendment

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, March 22.—A powerful group of farm-minded senators lined up today behind a proposal for increasing the agriculture parity payment program to $450,000,000, more than double the $212,000,000 already voted by the house.

Senator Russell (D-Ga.), leader in this and three successful previous moves to boost federal benefits to farmers, said he would offer a $238,000,000 amendment to the annual farm bill to make possible the additional payments.

"The least Congress can do is see that farmers are able to exist," the Georgia senator said. "Industry now has a backlog of orders that it can't even fill and the government is building factories for them. Wages of labor are at the highest levels in history, higher than even 1929."

He estimated that from the $450,000,000 parity payment fund, farmers would receive from "75 to 80 per cent of parity for their crops." The larger share would be needed, he indicated, for cotton and wheat farmers.

"Parity is a price calculated to restore to farm products the same purchasing power they had in a certain period in the past, usually the pre-war years 1909-1914."

Senator Barkhead (D-Ala.) sponsor of much recent farm legislation, and Senator Nye (R-Nd.) announced immediate support for the Russell proposal which will come before the senate appropriations subcommittee handling the annual farm bill. Russell is chairman of this subcommittee.

Russell said he expected both the appropriations committee and then the senate to approve the larger "parity payments."

It was the general belief that the proposal did not have the administration's blessing.

However, each year for the past three years the President has publicly opposed Russell's efforts for more farm funds, but each year the Georgian has succeeded in winning more than $200,000,000 additional for parity payment purposes.

Indignation Reported Amid

Serbian Soldiers Reported
Singing American and French Songs

(By Associated Press)

Optimistic British circles said today a growing wave of popular resentment in Yugoslavia against the government's plan to affiliate in modified fashion with the Axis would block temporarily and perhaps permanently any attempt to throw the Balkan kingdom over to the side of Adolf Hitler.

Great indignation was reported among Germans over a cabinet crisis which put a hitch in a plan originally calling for some kind of agreement in Vienna tomorrow.

Regent Grapples With Crisis

Regent Prince Paul and his premier wrestled with the crisis, which arose when three cabinet ministers resigned rather than agree with Axis terms.

Resigning ministers customarily are replaced by members of the same party but political circles said it was doubtful that any members of the Serb peasant party of which the resigned cabinet ministers were members, would accept a post in a pro-Axis cabinet.

The Yugoslav constitution requires that any agreement such as that proposed with the Axis must have the unanimous consent of the cabinet and since the Serb peasant party leaders are opposed to the agreement, neutral observers said the cabinet crisis might have serious effects.

Foreign Minister Aleksandar Cincar-Markovic and Premier Dragisa Cvetkovic were scheduled to leave Belgrade for Vienna today, but that now is impossible, government circles said.

Mobilized Serbian soldiers were said to be singing American and French World War songs last night during parades in the provinces and students in the capital assembled in a park near the royal palace and played "Tipperary," British World War song, on native instruments.

Plymouth Raided Again

In the western air war, the German Luftwaffe concentrated again on Plymouth, blasting many business houses and blocks of homes during a six-hour assault in the second successive night of raiding there. Casualties were believed to be heavy.

In Africa, British general headquarters at Cairo reported the capture of Glababul, long-defended Italian oasis in the eastern Libyan desert. The garrison commander and 800 Italian soldiers were taken prisoner, it was announced. The garrison had been under siege since December.

On the Albanian front, a Greek spokesman said an Italian tank thrust in the central sector was repulsed and one tank was reported destroyed.

MEDIATE: TO BE IN THE MIDDLE

The national defense mediation board appointed by President Roosevelt affirms a public policy. "Employers and employees engaged in production or transportation of materials necessary to national defense shall exert every possible effort to assure that all work necessary for national defense shall proceed without interruption and with all possible speed."

The board's function is to avert interruptions by preventing strikes. It performs this function—or will perform it—under the presidential declaration of a limited national emergency. These are extraordinary times; this is an extraordinary board. The government, reflecting popular opinion, is determined that national defense shall not be handicapped by work stoppages for any reason whatever.

Labor squabbling does not fit in with such things as peacetime conscription and the prevailing conviction that unless Great Britain can be bolstered up within the next few months by American production this nation will be standing alone against a formidable coalition of aggressor governments.

It is plain for all to see that the mediation board has no teeth. It cannot command; it only can consult and recommend. Its power is drawn wholly from popular conviction that strikes should be and can be mediated. In a showdown forced by either the labor unions or employers, the board would lack authority.

It would be like the Supreme court if the court were challenged to enforce its rulings. But most Americans don't make an issue out of Supreme court rulings because they realize the court contributes to stability. It is improbable that more than a very few will care to go up against the new mediation board, for the same reason. The board has been created to serve the public welfare, and the public welfare in this critical period of history cannot be served by hamstringing national defense to argue terms.

NEW IMPETUS

In the growing catalogue of things being proposed for national defense, the St. Lawrence seaway development is a prominent exhibit. It is typical of a long list of ideas that have received new impetus from the defense drive.

An odd thing about the St. Lawrence development always has been the candor of its critics. They scarcely bothered to conceal the pure selfishness of their motives, which was to protect their stake in handling ocean commerce. Their reason for opposing the plan to open the Great Lakes to ocean shipping was fear of the effect on ocean ports. When the plan was expanded to include extensive hydro-electric development, more opponents, also candidly selfish, appeared. Together with the general public, which was none too keen about spending the money, and critical minorities in Canada, they managed to keep the proposal on the shelf.

Perhaps, despite new interest, that's where it will stay. There are, however, some vital new circumstances to be considered. Access to the Great Lakes would be a distinct advantage in defense operations, with particular regard to shipbuilding and repairing. It would facilitate commerce between the United States and Canada's ocean ports. It would be an additional source of electrical energy for industry in the United States and Canada.

In fact, the worst thing that could have happened to the project's critics is a national defense program and the popular sentiment making the program possible. Many things formerly rejected as unfeasible and even foolish now are getting attention again as aids to national defense. Only the fact the project would require upward of five years to complete seems to remain as an insuperable obstacle to its immediate acceptance.

WRONG TRACK

Figures from the medical division of the selective service system indicating that defective teeth may account for as many as 20 per cent of rejection seem to warn the United States that it is on the wrong track in its pursuit of better dental health.

While the percentage may be reduced as more draftees are examined—it was 7.28 per cent for 1,000,000 men in the World War—there also is the possibility it might increase. Plainly, there has been no improvement in this field of public health.

Dentistry has improved, yes. Americans take better care of their teeth, as far as spending money is concerned, than any other nationality, but it is beginning to look as though they might be acting under necessity. No other single thing has caused more rejections for army service than bad teeth—and the army's requirements are not unreasonably high.

Evidently what is needed is widespread improvement in the conditions that seem to determine the durability of teeth, chiefly proper diet. While dentists have known for a long time that soft foods, which are part of the dietary problem, weren't providing ample exercise and massage for the jaws, the teeth and gums, the apparent rate of dental deterioration indicated by the experience of the selective service system must exceed their darkest forebodings.

THE STARS SAY:

For Sunday, March 23

SUNDAY'S horoscope is a rather doubtful one for progress and prosperity, holding omens of delays, irritations, disappointments and not particularly enjoyable health conditions. It might be a time for working along lines of least resistance, guarding the health, the funds and domestic harmony.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year of fluctuating fortunes, with more difficulties and doubts than definitely productive results. Routine activities, philosophic life, with care for the health and conservation of finances are also enjoined. Be wise also as to legal entanglements.

A child born on this day should be serious, philosophical and shrewd, although easily imposed upon and subject to legal complications or doubtful intrigues.

For Monday, March 24

MONDAY'S astrological forecast is for a rather routine state of affairs, with little stirring out of the ordinary. Yet there may be surprising developments brewing which may have a disruptive influence on the life, particularly operating on love affairs. Romance, thrills, upheaval are possible but not such as will be constructive and gratifying because of deep-seated treacheries.

Those whose birthday it is may have a rather uneventful year as to business, but their emotional, romantic social or domestic life may suffer disruption, peculiar or erratic conditions, with thrills and adventure attended by duplicity or betrayal.

A child born on this day should have original talents and faculties, with many unusual facets to its character.

CONCERNING "THE IDES OF MARCH"

Victims of Ulcer Will Begin To Complain

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
"The Ides of March" and that general period of the calendar, whatever it meant to Julius Caesar, means to a friend of mine the period of the year when people with ulcer begin to tune up again and complain. It is true, my friend is a drug manufacturer, who makes a preparation for the treatment of ulcer of the stomach and this may explain his particular interest in this season.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through this column.

But it certainly is true that ulcer of the stomach is a recurrent disease and people may have symptoms from their ulcers particularly in the spring and fall and be quite comfortable in the winter and summer for several years, until finally the ulcer ceases to trouble. This is perfectly natural because changes of seasons bring about changes in the pace of life and involve mental and physical stresses. The ulcer patient, however, may take comfort in the fact that even when these symptoms recur they are quite as easy to control as they were at the beginning in practically all cases.

But it seems an appropriate time to talk about ulcers for the benefit of those who have to endure them.

What are the causes of ulcer of the stomach and duodenum? Why do they recur? What is the nature of an ulcer anyway?

An ulcer anywhere is the body is in a mucous membrane and is a solution of continuity of the membrane. It is usually round or oval, so it is, therefore, a round, punched-out hole in the mucous membrane, which exposes the connective tissue underneath. Of course, it also exposes nerves, which is the cause of the discomfort.

Causes of Ulcers
Ulcers are due to various causes: bad circulation, as varicose veins of the legs; infection, as ulcer of the cornea of the eye; chemical irritation, as destruction of skin from lye or other caustic, or physical destruction, as from burns. Ulcers from infections, caustics and burns usually heal promptly unless the infection is augmented or unless the irritation is continued.

Now, using this as a background in order to try to explain peptic ulcer, we may say, in the first place, that we do not know definitely the cause of it but we do have these elements present. In the first place, very often, infection—pernaps infection which left there from a tooth or tonsil, and in the second place—and this is the reason it is called "peptic"—there is an increase in the normal amount of gastric juice and especially an increase in the hydrochloric acid, which is always present in gastric juice. In other words, we have a continuously irritating chemical substance, which keeps the ulcer going.

Some people have a constitutional habit which predisposes them towards ulcer, and it is quite possible that in their cases there is some deformity of the stomach or its blood vessels which adds to the circulatory factor.

All these things are important in the treatment of peptic ulcer, which I will discuss Monday.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

B. B.:—"I have neuralgia in my right arm. What is the treatment for neuralgia I have rubbed liniment on it but it does no good."

Answer—Rubbing liniment on a sore arm is beneficial only for the simplest kind of muscle sprains, and the rubbing does more good than the liniment. Neuralgia is a general term that means only nerve pain. The important thing is to find out what is the cause. It may be an injury to the bones or tendons and it may be a constitutional condition, such as diabetes. Or a focal infection, such as abscessed teeth or tonsils. Proper treatment follows on correct diagnosis.

G. D. F.:—"What chances have both brown-eyed parents with an equal number of brown and blue-eyed forebears to have blue-eyed offspring?"

Answer—The answer could be made mathematically if you had enough offspring—but if you only had four no prediction could be made, though the chances would be one blue-eyed to three brown-eyed. Get a book at the library called YOU AND HEREDITY where this is fully discussed.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clendening has seven pamphlets which can be obtained by readers. Each pamphlet sells for 10 cents. For any one pamphlet desired, send 10 cents in coin, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendening, 235 E. 45th st., New York. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks' Reducing Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene," and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

Repentance

Sin is a most personal fact. We may like to think of it in a general way, but sooner or later the individual must reckon with it personally.

The shadow of that cross lies over the pathway of every human being. All of us helped nail the Savior to the cross. We may try to deny it, forget it, or ridicule it. Eventually we are compelled to admit that we are guilty.

The admission of guilt is only a step away from remorse over sin—a feeling of regret, because we have offended our heavenly Father. There should follow a hunger for relief—the assurance that our guilt will not be held against us.

That is repentance. It is the first step in making the blessings of this Lenten season our own. Only the grace of God working through His Holy Word makes it possible.

The Luther league will meet on Monday evening at 7:45 in the church. The subject for study is, "Why We Observe Lent."

"Matter," is the subject of the lesson sermon which will be read at the morning worship of the Christian Science society tomorrow.

The Sunday service is also broadcast over station WOIE (610 kil.) Cleveland, the first and third Sundays of each month at 11 a. m.

Sunday school for pupils up to the age of 20 years is held at 9:30 a. m. The midweek service will be held the first Wednesday of each month at the church at 8 p. m.

The Golden Text is: "All flesh is grass, and all the goodness thereof is as the flower of the field: the grass withereth, the flower fadeth: because the spirit of the Lord bloweth upon it" (Isaiah 40:6, 7).

Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "Therefore whosoever heareth these sayings of mine, and doeth them, I will liken him unto a wise man, which built his house upon a rock: . . . And the rain descended, and the floods came, and the winds blew, and beat upon that house; and it fell not: for it was founded upon a rock" (Matthew 7:24, 25).

The lesson-sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "The testimony of the material senses is neither absolute nor divine. I therefore plant myself unreservedly on the teachings of Jesus, of his apostles, of the prophets, and on the testimony of the Science of Mind. Other foundations there are none" (p. 289).

This society maintains a reading room at 136 So. Broadway where the Bible and all authorized Christian Science literature may be read or borrowed. The room is open from 1:30 to 4 p. m. on Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday and from 7 to 9 p. m. on Saturday.

Rev. Keister Will Speak On 'Interceding Saviour' At Holy Trinity Church

Rev. George Keister's topic for the Sunday morning worship of the Holy Trinity English Lutheran church is, "The Interceding Saviour."

Announcements follow:
Fourth Sunday in Lent—(Laetare) Sunday school 9:45 (St. Luke 23:13-25). Charles W. Youtz, superintendent.

The trial and condemnation of Jesus was far from fair and legal. There were many places where the charges were false and the legal process were set aside which promised an unprejudiced trial for the accused. The stage was all set for His crucifixion and all efforts were pushed aside to save Him from the cross. He was condemned before he was really proven guilty. Too many people are hasty in judging Jesus before they give Him and His Gospel a fair chance. They are unwilling to investigate His life and teachings. They have not given Him a fair trial in their minds and lives.

Morning worship, 11:00. Sermon: "The Interceding Saviour."

The interest of Jesus was always in the direction of others. His own intense suffering on the Cross did not prevent Him praying for others and providing for their welfare. He was always concerned about the welfare of other people. His prayers were marked with intercession for those whom He knew as greatly in need. He saw the weaknesses of the disciples. He perceived the sins and temptations that would assail the most interested people. He assured them of His prayers. The intercession of Christ our Savior is cause of hope and cheer for every believer.

"Dear dying Lamb, Thy precious Blood Shall never lose its power. Till all the ransomed Church of God Be saved to sin no more."

Luther League, 6:30 p. m. Devotional topic, "What Is Sin?" Leader, Lynn Koch.

Lydia Bible class meets Monday evening at the church. Hostesses: Mrs. Paul Ritchie, Mrs. Earl Collins, and Mrs. John Niederhiser. Topic, "Life in Palestine in Bible Times." Leader, Mrs. Louis Laurain.

Jessie Thomas circle meets Tuesday evening, with Mrs. Galen Greenstein, 575 Euclid st., as hostess. Leader, Miss Ruth Hoch.

Mid-Week Lenten service—Wednesday, 7:30 p. m.

Catechism class—Thursday, 4 p. m.

Praying services at the Washingtonville Lutheran church, Sunday evening at 7:30.

no grain of truth in it. The story is designed deliberately to mislead.

American newspapers, thank goodness, are designed to inform. True, an imaginative reporter may describe a tenement-doorstep romance as a beautiful and touching scene. He may describe a corner brawl as a threatened riot. But you can bet your last dollar that there was a love scene and that there was a brawl.

The reason is simple. There is no force to make American newspapers describe something which doesn't happen. There is a great force which makes them report what does happen. It is the force of a free public opinion, which in America has the power of life and death over a newspaper.

Consider newspaper advertising, also. I have a German newspaper advertisement in my hands which tells readers, very colorfully, that a chemical substitute for sugar is oh-sogood. In America there would be a real sugar advertisement alongside which would knock the phony one into the garbage heap where it belongs.

What makes this difference between our papers and those of totalitarian Europe so important to you?

Just this. As long as you have papers free to tell you the truth, no dictator can seize power, move without your knowledge, mislead you into buying shoddy substitutes.

Give up whatever luxuries these times of crisis demand. But if you ever hope to stay free, hold onto your American-style newspapers!

News Color

A DIRTY, rusty car may run as well and last as long as a clean and shiny one. But it isn't "worth" as much to most of us.

I mention this because I've heard people criticize the brightness and "color" which goes into your newspapers. The color—which is to say the side-lights, the descriptive stories, the pictures—is there because you want it. It helps you to understand and appreciate the news.

However, make no mistake about this: The important thing to you is how real the news underneath is.

When government decides not to give you the actual news, it piles on camouflage to fool you.

I have before me a copy of a Moscow paper containing the story of what was actually a horrible piece of government bungling—according to American observers long trained in reporting the truth. This story is gorgeously "colored." It talks of the great bravery of the Soviet troops, the cruel treachery and bestiality of the "enemy." It claims glorious victory and tells of "rejoicing" that never happened.

I also have here a Nazi account of an event which I witnessed in America. I know there's

WOTAN'S WEDGE by FRANCIS GERARD A PRELUDE TO BLITZKRIEG

CHAPTER TWENTY-THREE

In a moment Klover had closed the door and crossed the room to kneel before the Rabbi and take his thin hands in his strong ones. He bent forward and the venerable man kissed him on the forehead and on the cheek; Hermann gently brushed one of the phylacteries with his lips.

Quietly the old man released his hands, and stared and stared as though he could never fill his eyes enough with the sight of this young man whom he loved so well.

"Ah, Hermann, Hermann. You come so rarely now. No, no, boy, there is no reproach in my words, for I know well you come when you can. And I know, too, that you would come more often if you could. I have been spared longer than the normal lot of man; that I am assured. You, my beloved, are a part of that purpose, and I must fill my heart when I may."

The aged man broke off and Hermann asked, "Are you well, Rabbi?"

"Well, and more than well," he answered, "now that you are here. But you cannot stay long, that I know, and we have much to speak of. So now you will tell me, is all well with you? Not with your mission, for that we will speak anon, but is all well with yourself?"

"Why should it not be, Rabbi?" asked the other.

"My son, I have not known you for nearly forty years without knowing your every mood and look. What is ill with you?"

"Rabbi," replied Hermann softly, "I love a woman."

"Is she married?" And as the other shook his head, "Then what ails you, Hermann? For it is only right that you should cling to a woman and that she should cling to you."

"She is a girl—a Christian."

"Even that is not impossible," declared the old man.

"She is a von Reinhold and a niece of von Wallenfels."

The Rabbi looked startled. "A Wallenfels?" he echoed.

"His niece," the other added.

"All one, all one," replied the old man staring dimly across the room and speaking as though to himself. He turned to the man at his side and said, "Fate plays queer tricks and this is one, that you should love one who is of the kind of those whom you abhor."

"Abhor!" cried the other catching up the word. "Yes.... Hate! I hate them and all their kind with their brutal self-sufficiency and vile treatment of my people."

He broke off a moment, his dark face working; then looked up and said, "Did you hear of Rosa Schmidt, Rabbi?"

The old man shook his head. "Rosa Schmidt? No, my son. Of Gretchen and Hilda you have spoken, but never of Rosa."

A story look appeared on Klover's face as he said, "No, Rabbi. Rosa was not as Gretchen and Hilda. She was the wife of a friend, Jacob Schmidt, who had a flat near mine in Vienna. Jacob was killed by a Storm Trooper who was hit, a defenceless man, and when he lay upon the ground broke his jaw with his boot. I did not see it done, but Jacob's mother did and soon afterwards she died. Rosa was left alone, save for Jacob's child which she was carrying when they made our people go down upon their knees and clean the public streets. Rosa was among them. She was near her time, Rabbi, and I.... I stood and watched and did nothing, for I was following that path which you had chosen for me.... I was already a Nazi, so that I might report to you and help my people from inside their enemies' own ranks.

"It was a hot day, very hot, and they made Rosa go on scrubbing the pavement while they stood around and jeered. And when she faltered, a husky fellow, in a brown shirt, placed the flat of his foot on her back and pushed so that she fell upon her face. The onlookers found this funny, even when she wept. Well, Jacob's son was born dead and Rosa followed him within the hour."

Hermann paused a moment, his face white and blazing. "Hate them?" he whispered. "I hate the very air they pollute!"

The old man gently laid a hand on the other's head. "And so you must work, my son, that these people may have power no more. We must use such weapons as we may find and we must seek help from such people as are not brutes as these are. As you know, we must look to England to see justice done; for, with all her faults, she has a habit of ingrained honesty which goes beyond the double-dealing and muddle-headlines of her politicians, and is found at the very core and heart of all those things which are the best in England. To her, to the United States and to all humanitarians we must turn, for they, alone, are our hope and the hope of all who would be decent and free in this world."

"Go back to your work, Hermann, and know that too, are doing your share to overcome these Nazis who would goose-step in their jackboots across the faces of mankind.... Tell me," he went on after a little pause, "are your plans nearly completed?"

"Yes, Rabbi."

They talked for a little while longer; then, when Rabbi Ephraim had blessed him, Hermann Rothstein, alias Siegfried Klover, returned to the other room. "How do you find him?" asked Raphael Gleiner.

Klover replied, "There is nothing wrong with his mind; it is as keen as ever, but he looks very frail, so full of years." He paused in thought, then looked up with a sigh. "Raphael," he said, "I want to have a look at your Records Department of which you are so proud."

"That's true, Hermann," smiled the Swiss Jew. "It has taken a lot of time, trouble, money and even lives, this tabulating of enemy weaknesses."

Klover nodded. "I know, how well I know it."

Gleiner and Klover made their way by the back staircase through a steel door which opened with a combination lock. The whole top floor of the house was divided into offices where a small staff of hand-picked men worked during the day and slept in the modernized basement at night. One of these rooms was devoted entirely to a card-index filing system.

"Who do you want to look up?" asked Gleiner as they went in.

"A man called Stutz, Erich Stutz."

"Is he a member of the Nazi Party?"

"He was."

"Dead?" suggested the other. "If so, his record will not be in this room. It will be in our room which my assistant calls the morgue."

"No, he's not dead—yet," explained Hermann, "but he has been expelled from the Nazi Party and is now a fugitive in England."

"In England," said Gleiner quickly. "Is he after you?"

"Yes. He is," replied Klover grimly. "That is why I have got to know all about him to make up my mind how best to deal with him."

Raphael Gleiner looked about him at the great metal filing-cabinets which ran from floor to ceiling all round the room. He shook his head.

"Stutz is not dead and no longer a member of the Nazi Party," he murmured. "Look here, Hermann, excuse me just a moment. I think I had better call my assistant."

He picked up a house telephone, pressed a button, and said, "Blattner?... Gleiner speaking.... Would you mind coming up to our office?.... Her: Rothstein wants some information."

A few minutes later, they were joined by a little, dark, birdlike man in a long, woolly dressing-gown, beneath which his pajama trousers showed luridly purple. After introductions, he asked, "What was it you wanted?" and Klover explained.

"This way, gentlemen," barked Blattner, and they followed him to another room where he unlocked one of the filing cabinets. He used no less than four keys; turned the electric light off and on seven times. The five foot steel drawer then rolled slowly forward apparently of its own volition. Siegfried Klover smiled, "Burglar-proof?"

"We think so." The little record keeper bustled forward, muttering, "Stutz, Erich; Stutz, Erich," until he extracted a card and held it close under his nose to read.

"But what does this tell us?" asked Klover, looking at the card over Blattner's shoulder and seeing nothing but apparently disjointed numerals.

"Oh, this is not the record," Gleiner explained. "This is merely the index. One man's name may occur dozens of times in other records."

When Erich Stutz's record was finally assembled, it was not a pleasant one.

Born of peasant stock in Passau forty-four years ago, Erich Stutz had shown himself early to be possessed of strong traits which might be described as anti-social. At 15, an assault on an 11-year-old girl sent Stutz flying from his native village just ahead of an angry crowd carrying scythes and pitchforks. Surprisingly enough, Erich Stutz next turned up in domestic services as an under-footman at the castle of a noble Prussian family.

"Who were these people?" asked Klover, his finger half across the typewritten page, punctuated at intervals by yawns and zzzs.

"There are none of them left now," said Gleiner. "At least, none of the name. Relatives of the Wallenfels. The last of them, a girl named Adelheid, married young von Reinhold who died recently."

"Adelheid von Reinhold?" exclaimed Klover.

The other looked at him curiously. "Do you know her?" he asked.

"Yes. She is General von Wallenfels' niece and is staying with him. I saw her the other day."

"The devil you did!" commented the other. "Well, she has good reason. Remember, Erich Stutz, and his finger pointed to a section further down the typed record."

Klover read it. It seemed that Stutz had not long remained in domestic service; he left his employment with three ribs broken and half dead after a severe thrashing from which he recovered to find himself in prison. The record stated baldly, "for insulting the young Baroness Adelheid."

"The animal!" snarled Klover. "She must be very charming, this Adelheid," was Gleiner's shrewd, if smiling, observation.

Secret Agent Klover said nothing and he continued to study Stutz's record. Erich evidently was one of the early Storm Troopers and when the Nazis came to power rose with them. He became a section leader in his native village on the Austrian frontier; there he was able to get even with former enemies now that he was in a position to make them grovel. He did. He also made money on the side, breaking the Nazi currency laws and taking fifty per cent of money smuggled across into Austria from Germany.

Klover rose to his feet, with the question, "What would you say, Raphael, was this man's vital weakness?"

"Women! Obviously!"

Hermann Rothstein, alias Siegfried Klover, nodded sternly in grim agreement. He would not try to avoid Stutz in London now. He had another score to settle with him....

SHE'S SAFE This Time

We don't take much of a chance "guessing who" in a case like this, even though strong masculine fingers do unexpectedly blind us for a moment. Almost always we can make a pretty good guess.

But there are times when people — women particularly, perhaps — can't depend upon a guess; times when the matter being decided is too vital for guesswork.

Deciding upon a funeral director at the moment of need is I think such an occasion. It is so important that the choice is a sound one that I often recommend to my friends that they secure the facts, and make their decisions, in advance of the necessity. Modern funeral establishments like the Stark Memorial always welcome visitors with questions to ask.

"Dark Horses" Set For Semi-Finals Of High School Tourney

Upsets Sweep Favored Teams From Cage Games In First Two Rounds

Canfield Trips Hanover, 48-42, Meets Midvale Today; Martins Ferry, Lakewood, Massillon, Xenia Central In "A" Semi-Finals

By FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS, March 22.—Eight "dark horses" were set for battle today in the semi-finals of the State High School Basketball tournament as the result of a series of upsets which swept favored squads out of both Class A and Class B competition in the two opening rounds.

Proof that season records mean absolutely nothing when the chips go down in tournament play was offered in Friday's second round. In each game of the eight on the program, the team with the poorer record for the season came home the winner.

Still in there battling in Class A are Martins Ferry, Massillon, Lakewood and Xenia Central. Up to date that quartet has won 74 and lost 11 games.

Their second round victims were Cincinnati Hughes, Springfield Township of East Akron, Canton McKinley and Newark, a quartet that had won 77 and lost seven.

In Class B, the "upset" angle was still more pronounced. Remaining in today's semi-finals in the smaller school sector are Midvale, Canfield, Glenford and Xenia O. S. & S. O. Home, the four having won 87 while losing 15 this season. They eliminated Hicksville, Elmore, Hanover Township of Hamilton, and Cridersville — and that foursome had won 96 while losing but seven.

Favorites Lose
At the start, the experts had a hunch Canton McKinley, last year's finalist, unbeaten Middletown, twice champion Newark, or dark horse Martins Ferry would take the Class A laurels. Of that group only Martins Ferry is still in.

In Class B were five teams which had been beaten but once, and another which had a clean sweep of 21 games, but all of these are out of the running now. Of the semi-finalists in Class B Midvale has dropped five, Xenia O. S. & S. O. and Canfield four each, and Glenford two.

Class A is minus its two unbeaten squads, Springfield Township and Middletown, and once-beaten Canton McKinley, but twice-beaten Martins Ferry and Lakewood, thrice-defeated Xenia Central, and Massil-

SAXONS, Y.P.C.C. AND RUDIBAUGH'S FIGHT FOR CROWN

Remain In Class B Round-Robin Tourney; Methodists Out

After the smoke had cleared away from last night's Class B Round-Robin tourney battles at the Memorial building, three quintets, Rudibaugh's, Y. P. C. C. and Saxons, still remained in the fight for the championship.

Monday night at 7:30, the Saxons and Y. P. C. C. will tangle to determine who will face Rudibaugh's in the finals Tuesday night.

In last night's frays, the Saxons pulled a surprise by licking the previously unbeaten Rudibaugh's five, 40-23, and the Y. P. C. C. knocked the Methodists out of the tourney with a 36-30 setback.

C. Sweitzer and S. Wagner paced the Saxons with 14 and 12 points, respectively. Drakulich led Rudibaugh's with 10 tallies.

M. Hippley sparked the Y. P. C. C. attack with 10 counters while Pridon was the big gun for the Methodists with 19 markers.

Ohio U., Seton Hall Face Tests Monday

(By Associated Press)
NEW YORK, March 22. — Ohio university and Seton Hall, led by a pair of the most brilliant individual stars ever to appear in Madison Square Garden, tackle canny Metropolitan cage rivals tonight in the semi-finals of the National Intercollegiate Invitational Basketball tournament.

Ohio university faces the small but smart City college quintet and Seton Hall opposes the big Long Island university team. With all the reserved seats for tonight and for Monday's finals already sold, indications are that the crowd will approach the Garden record of 18,341 established last Wednesday.

Bob Davis, the limber Seton Hall star, left the Garden fans gasping at his amazing performances against Rhode Island State Wednesday and no less an authority than Nat Holman, the City college coach, said he considered Davis a better player than Stanford's immortal Hank Luisetti. Frank Baumholtz, the Ohio U. star, was up against somewhat more exacting opposition in Monday's first-round game against Duquesne, but he was almost equally impressive.

There's a good chance, however, that they'll meet in the consolation game Monday rather than in the championship battle. For if Davis has a weakness, Clair Bee, the Long Island coach, is the one to spot it. So far all Bee has admitted publicly is that the best way to stop the "Harrisburg Houdini" would be to hit him with an axe.

Still, Long Island has a big, well-coached team that has a lot more defense than Rhode Island ever thought of and a sound, successful attack. City college also has the defense to halt Ohio's fast-breaking attack and a tricky offense of its own that produced 64 points in its opening game against Virginia.

Louis Puts Simon Away In 13th

Heavyweight Champ Joe Louis is pictured as he scored a technical knockout over Abe Simon in the 13th round of their bout in Detroit. Simon's unexpected toughness stunned the 18,000 fans who jammed Olympia stadium to capacity. Promoter Mike Jacobs announced that the two heavies would fight a return bout in New York City on May 16.

There were no changes in the Federal league standings at the Masonic alleys last night.

The first-place Meissner's took two out of three from the National Brass while the Brownies remained a game behind as they won two from the Sanitary Shoppers. The Brass and Shoppers remain tied for fifth place.

Meissner's chalked up a 905 in their third game. Hise and Vesey aided the Servicemen with a 214 in their first and third games, respectively.

The Sanitary foremen swept three from the F. O. E. to remain two games behind Brownies and three behind Meissner's.

The fourth-place Ohio Edison edged the K. of C. two out of three. There was not much excitement in the Grate Ladies' loop as the standing of all but two teams remained unchanged.

Kaufman's took two from Brownies to climb into seventh place while the Church Budget lost three tilts to the Damascus Lumber, who went into ninth.

The front-running Ford V-8's took two from the Salem Cab while Polsky's whipped the Eagles three straight.

All other league games were postponed.

PLUCKY ABE SIMON STAYS 13 ROUNDS WITH CHAMP LEWIS

As Reward for Courageous Fight, He'll Get Another Chance

(By Associated Press)
DETROIT, March 22.—Slide over, Al McCoy, Red Burman and Gus Dorazio and make room for Conrade Abe Simon—a fighter with courage almost beyond imagination.

Ponderous Abe Simon, 254 pounds of him, has joined the ranks of 14 other futile contenders for Joe Louis' world's heavyweight championship, but in so doing he gave the Brown Bomber the hardest and most surprising fight he has experienced as title-holder, fooling everybody in a standing-room crowd of 18,908 in Detroit's Olympia arena last night. Three thousand were turned away.

Simon, figured to last no longer than four rounds, fell victim to a technical knockout after one minute and 20 seconds of fighting in the 13th round. Referee Sam Hennessey humanely stopped the sensational battle after Louis had knocked Simon down twice in quick succession for counts of nine in that fatal round. Simon was on his feet, his hands gripping the top rope of the ring in his own corner, but he was helpless and could not continue.

Helpless, Says Referee
"The man was absolutely helpless," Hennessey explained today. "I had nothing else to do but stop it. If I had allowed Louis to hit the helpless Simon to a finishing blow, there might have been serious consequences."

As a reward for his courageous and surprising showing, Promoter Mike Jacobs planned today to give Simon another shot at the title. He intends to rematch the pair for a 15-round engagement in New York, May 16. There was some talk, however, they might be rematched for a September open air bout in Detroit, the champion's home town.

Simon and his manager, Jimmy Johnston, protested ending the fight Simon declared that Louis' blows did not hurt him at any time. He shouted at Louis even when the doctors were closing an inch and one-half gash in the lid of his left eye.

"Why did they stop it?" he demanded. "It was the thirteenth round, wasn't it? And this was Friday, too. Holy, jumping Bolivar! The next time I fight I hope it's on Thursday."

RIP SEWELL

comeback and elongated Johnny Gee, the $75,000 tall boy, has been working hard to get over a sore arm and redeem himself after his disappointing debut in 1940.

Relief Pitcher Joe Bowman, Mace Brown, Max Butcher, Ken Heintzman, Bob Klingler, Dick Lanahan, John Lanning, Oads Swigart, Lloyd Dietz and Bill Clemensen, of the Boys from Syracuse, these complete the roll of leading aspirants.

Pretty Well Set

Frisch is pretty well set with the rest of his team, and it shapes up as a good one. Flashy Elbie Fletcher at first, Frankie Gustine at second, Veteran Arky Vaughan at shortstop and Lee Handley at third make up the infield, although Debs Garms has been doing third base duty in spring games. Stu Martin is also on hand for second base service.

Fordham Frankie has two sets of outfielders, one swinging from the right side of the plate, the other from the port side. He probably will lead off with Maurice Van Robays, Vince DiMaggio and Bob Elliott, but he has Lloyd (Little Poison) Waner, Garms and young Eddie Stewart, who hit 300 with San Diego last year, to call in if need be.

OWN DREAM HOME BUILT BY LOVERS

DALLAS, Tex. — Weldon Gibbs and Sue Lawson went to high school together and were sweethearts. They wanted to get married, but they first wanted a home of their own.

So they worked together and built one.
Gibbs, a husky boy of 19 when he was graduated from high school, got a job as a printer. He could only work evenings. Sue, a pretty brunette, helped him.

While Gibbs hacked away at a hill chosen as a homestead, Sue made sandwiches and boiled coffee over a campfire. They started work at 7 P. M. and quit when they got tired.

It took two years, but Gibbs now literally has moved a small hill, using a pick and wheelbarrow, and has built a four-room and bath home of red Millisack rock.

The fireplace, Gibbs' masterpiece, is made of red stone and is a spacious wood burner. Part of the wood work is knotty pine.

The only work which Gibbs did not do was the wallpapering.
When the house was completed on a five-evenings a week work plan, Weldon and Sue were married.

NEW NAVAL PLANS BOOST SECURITY

Striking Force To Meet Any Threat Gains In Power

WASHINGTON—The recent reorganization of the U. S. fleet into three distinct forces has improved this country's capacity to meet quickly and forcefully any threat to American security in the Atlantic, Pacific or Far East, naval quarters here assert.

President Roosevelt in an executive order created three fleets under separate commanders-in-chief. Admiral Thomas C. Hart commands the Asiatic Fleet; Admiral Ernest J. King, the Atlantic Fleet and Admiral Edward Kimmel, the Pacific Fleet. Kimmel also is commander-in-chief of the U. S. fleet, comprising all these forces.

Prior to the reorganization order, the fighting forces allocated consisted of the Pacific Fleet, the Asiatic Fleet and the Patrol Force in the Atlantic.

The new reorganization not only gives the Atlantic force a full fleet status but provides greater flexibility in organization to all these forces.

Battle Force in Pacific
The great bulk of the naval strength still resides in the Pacific Fleet, based at Hawaii. However, the Atlantic Fleet will be augmented substantially as the naval program gains momentum, and some new units are expected to be added to the Asiatic force.

The commanders-in-chief are regarded as being well qualified for their positions in these increasingly critical days. Among them, they have seen service in two major wars and a series of campaigns. Kimmel, who once served as President Roosevelt's aide when the latter was assistant secretary of navy, is a veteran of the World War and the Mexican campaign.

In the World War he served as executive officer aboard the U. S. S. Arkansas operating with the British Grand Fleet. After hostilities ended he was captain of the yard at the Cavite Naval station in the Philippines and later commanded a destroyer division of the Asiatic Fleet. He has also seen considerable service in the Navy department.

In Spanish-American War
Admiral King saw his first war service during the hostilities with Spain. At that time he served aboard the U. S. S. San Francisco engaged in patrol duty off the Atlantic coast.

During the World War King was assistant chief of the staff of Admiral Henry T. Mayo, commander-in-chief of the U. S. fleet. He received the Navy Cross for his services.

In 1925, when King was in command of the submarine base at New London, Conn., the submarine S-51 was sunk off Block Island. King was in charge of salvage operations and won the Distinguished Service Medal for his efficient work.

King is a qualified naval aviator and has served as commander of flying units.

The new commander-in-chief of the Atlantic Fleet took command of the patrol force in December, 1940. The patrol force was the forerunner of the Atlantic Fleet. Among King's various awards are the Spanish Campaign Medal, the Mexican Service Medal and the decoration of the Grande Oficial Order of the Crown of Italy.

Alliance Ousts Pinballs

Theatre Attractions

Remarkable Story Filmed
Another best selling novel to take screen honors is "The Sign of the Cross," the film, based on his story of a group of the "living dead," who wander the face of the earth homeless, hopeless and helpless, is "So Ends Our Night," which will be shown at the State Friday and Saturday. Fredric March, Margaret Sullivan, Frances Dee, Glenn Ford, Anna Sten and Erich von Stroheim have the principal parts.

Concluding at the State theater tonight is the Charles Boyer-Margaret Sullivan hit, "Back Street." Showing Sunday only at the Grand are: "Father's Son," with John Littel, Frieda Inescourt, Billy Dawson and Christian Rub, based on a Booth Tarkington story of a boy who solved the puzzle of handling "problem parents"; and a re-issue of the early James Cagney-Pat O'Brien success, "Here Comes the Navy."

War Benefit Tuesday
An all-star cast, headed by Anna Neagle, will be seen in "No, No, Nanette," a musical comedy based on the stage success, to show Tuesday night only at the Grand as a benefit for the Greek war relief fund.

The cast includes Richard Carlson, Victor Mature, Roland Young, Helen Broderick, Zasu Pitts, Eve Arden, Tamara, Billy Gilbert and Stuart Robertson.

Wednesday's double bill at the Grand is: A comedy, "Petticoat Politics," with Roscoe Karns and Ruth Donnelly; and a mystery, "The Case of the Black Parrot," featuring William Landigan, Maris Wrixon, Eddie Foy, Jr., and Lili Deste.

The Grand's Friday and Saturday attraction will be "Robin Hood of the Pecos," featuring Roy Rogers, with George (Gabby) Hayes and Sally Payne.

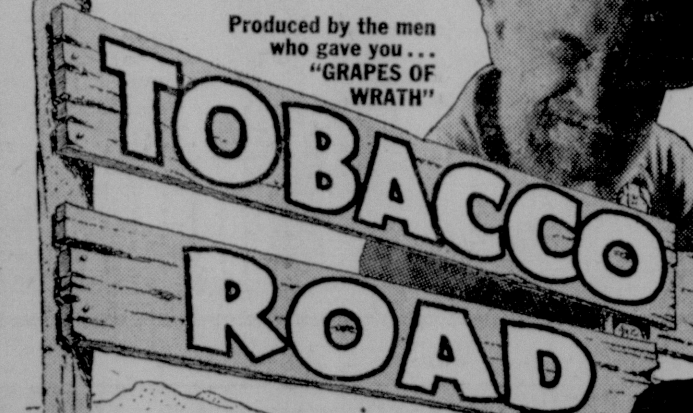

Concluding there tonight is the western, "In Old Colorado," with William Boyd as Hopalong Cassidy, Russell Hayden and Andy Clyde.
